L. A. COUNTY EDITORS TO SPEND WEEK AT GOLDBROOK CAMP

Goldbrook camp, at the headwaters of San Gabriel river, under the giant oaks and water-loving alders, will be the re-thawen of the Los Angeles County Press Association from Saturday, June 19, to Friday, June 25.

Already two-thirds of the members of this big organization have sent in their names to Secretary Jay Randall, signifying an intention to be present with their families.

Goldbrook camp is in the north fork mountain road which the county will build this year goes directly through the camp. The trips of interest adjacent to the camp are many, including the ribbon-like cataract known as Triple Falls, the great plateau on the side of Mount Islip, known as Pine Flats, and Crystal Lake, a body of water in a mountain bowl, 6000 feet above the sea.

The trip to the camp is begun at Azusa, the stage breaking out at 9.30. Saddle horses will also be provided. The San Gabriel canyon itself, for the twenty-five mile trip is a continuous panorama of wonders. The route will follow closely the line upon which the road will be built by the county, connecting the Antelope valley with the San Gabriel valley with a splendid mountain highway.

The bid of the Tropico Sentinel for printing and publishing for ensuing year was accepted and a contract ordered drawn and signed.

F. H. Davis, C. C. Rittenhouse and Geo. Laurel, representing the Knights of Pythias, appeared and asked for an appropriation for the Pythian carnival. Upon motion the board offered to furnish the lights on San Fernando road not to exceed $50.

Do You Know the Multiplication Table?

By MOSS.

DO you know what the Pythagorean abacus is?

No, it's NOT the name of a NEW dance. It's simply another name for the MULTIPLICATION TABLE.

Pythagoras was a Greek philosopher (born about 582 B. C.) who taught the recognition of the numerical and mathematical relations of things.

You have seen an abacus, a little wooden frame traversed by stiff wires, on which run wooden beads, used for counting, principally by the Chinese.

Are you using the Pythagorean abacus with relation to the BENEFIT you derive from our ADVERTISING PAGES?

Are you MULTIPLYING your ADVANTAGES?

For instance, suppose you did not read this newspaper at all. You'd do your buying HIT or MISS and GET STUNG! Suppose you just glanced at the ads. ONCE IN A GREAT WHILE. You'd think you were buying INTELLIGENTLY, but you'd be MISTAKEN.

Multiply your chances of SAVING MONEY and getting BETTER GOODS by making it your duty to FOLLOW THE ADS. CLOSELY all the time.

NOTE This campaign is going to be a campaign of surprises. This Paper has reserved hundreds of dollars worth of prizes which will be announced later. Some next week and some the week after. Every candidate who received votes from at least two subscriptions will win a prize

Is your name in the list?

Are you one of those in line to win the splendid Chevrolet touring car, or the much to be desired full-year course in the widely known Von Stein Academy of Music?

Are you going to be one of those to view the astounding beauties of the San Francisco or San Diego expositions? Are you going to walk away with a business college scholarship in the wonderfully efficient Mackay school. To be able to win a scholarship in this excellent school for so very little effort as is required in this campaign is indeed an exceptional opportunity.

Have you determined to be the one who will take home the household necessity in the form of a vacuum sweeper which is on display at the store of F. B. McKinney & Son? Any of the various listed can be made the property of any one of the several candidates listed for just a little effort on his or her part.

Read the big advertisement elsewhere in this paper for more detailed information regarding the various prizes.

The first schedule of coupons and ballots voted for the various candidates in the great subscription campaign of the Press and Sentinel appears in this issue. In looking over the list it will be found that some of the names that appeared in the first list have disappeared while new ones have been added.

From now the campaign will be interesting indeed. The standings will change constantly. Each week the story of votes cast will be told Watch for it.

Each of the various candidates has many loyal supporters of whom he or she is unaware. This support will make itself evident from time to time in the standings printed.

In this issue of the paper will be found a voting coupon good for 500 votes. As many of these as can be acquired may be voted to the credit of a candidate. This same coupon will also serve as a nomination coupon if so desired.

The candidates are getting into the field rapidly, and this week will have a great story of results to tell. The campaign is of such short duration, ending July 24, that enthusiasm will wax warm every minute of the way.

It behooves those in the race to get busy and suggest to their friends that they are in the race to the finish. The minute friends and acquaintances are aware of the fact they will immediately get in and boost. That is what makes a good race—when one's friends and acquaintances become interested. A demonstration of determination on the part of a candidate is the best method to use in arousing the interest of friends and acquaintances.

The race in reality has just started. People of the community have just become interested, and are forming their conclusions as to whom they will support. Interview your acquaintances early and enlist their support. Use the telephone or do so by personal call. Organization of supporters is half the battle.

Get in touch with the campaign manager. He will gladly give you all the information and assistance at his disposal.

Now that you have been nominated the person who has interest enough in you to make the nomination will be disappointed if you do not make the best of the opportunity offered you.

Read carefully the news of the campaign to read it, and to cut out the coupon and deposit them to your credit. Also mention the fact to them that the sooner they begin reading the paper the sooner they can begin accumulating coupons to be voted for you.

AMBULANCE READY FOR CALL AT THE FIRE ON SUNDAY

Severn, Letton, Fry Co., undertakers, corner Brand and Acacia were in attendance at the fire last Sunday with their new auto ambulance ready to lend assistance if needed. This act upon their part has expressed their intentions to be ready at all times to be of service in this capacity. The ambulance carries room for doctor, nurse and attendant, cot and stretcher, hot and cold water and all necessary appliances for use in first aid work.

While no one would anticipate the need of an ambulance, fate is very unkind at times and it is of great satisfaction to know that such emergencies will be taken care of.

"FAIRYLAND," THE PRIZE OPERA AT CLUNE'S AUDITORIUM

William Wade Hinshaw, the distinguished American baritone, who has been chosen to create the role of Corvain in the opera "Fairyland," to be given at The Auditorium, July 1, 2 and 3, is one of the best refutations to the question asked so frequently a number of years ago, "Is singing a manly art?"

Actors and singers have had to endure insults and snubs for several centuries before their professions were deemed "respectable." When one recalls that royal Austrian etiquette in the 18th century obliged the divinely gifted Mozart to dine with the servants, one must admit we are living in a more civilized age. Caste, like tradition, dies slowly but when strong men shatter an outworn theory it soon fades away like a bleak day, the passing of which no one bemoans. With the arrival of the De Reszke brothers at the Metropolitan an entirely new attitude was established; they were men, every inch of them; tall, distinguished and virile; they commanded respect and admiration before singing a note. No tenor has ever effaced the recollection of Jean de Reszke's sublime interpretations, although several basses have, one of them being the same William Hinshaw, who we will hear shortly in "Fairyland."

He is six feet three inches in his stockings, a college graduate, his alma mater being Valparaiso, Indiana. For five years he was the principal baritone at the Metropolitan interpreting principally the terrifically difficult Wagnerian roles, such as Wotan in "Die Walkure" and "Das Rheingold" and "Hans Sachs." Few really know what any singer earns at the Metropolitan, but the useful artists are well paid and their regular salaries, together with what they earn in concerts, place them in a class with men who reap substantial rewards for their works even as the captains of industry we are so familiar with and the many professional men earning enormous incomes through their specially trained talents. Mr. Hinshaw has enjoyed as the fruits of his splendidly trained voice, an income accruing both from opera and recital which would make many a captain of industry re-nounce a manly art, else how could it be so acceptable to the public that they will willingly pay enormous sums to listen to the same?

TWO FIRES IN TROPICO ON SUNDAY ATTRACT CROWDS AND DO BIG DAMAGE

Sunday was a busy day for the Tropico Fire Dept. In the morning a call came in and the boys and engine were called to the Sanitarium where a grass fire had gotten beyond control. The boys quickly put out the flames.

In the afternoon about 2 o'clock they responded to a call coming in from the Tropico garage and for several hours fought terrific flames at the Planning Mill on Tropico Ave., near the S. P. tracks.

The building and machinery belonged to A. J. Niemeyer and was a total loss.

During the excitement the homes on Fernando Ct. were kept from danger by obliging neighbors. The home of E. R. Best was discovered ablaze, but was quickly extinguished before any danger was done.

Several days ago a fire was discovered by Wm. Tatham in the mill but it was put out without a fire call. At this time investigation showed that some one had endeavored to set the building a fire. On Sunday the incendiary was more successful and evidently started the fire in an upstairs room for when discovered the entire building was a mass of flames.

When the fire truck arrived short work was made with the 90-horse power engine and its capacity of 600 gallons per minute.

Glendale's engine responded to a call sent in by some nervous person, but were not needed, but remained for a short time to be near in case of trouble.

K. P. CARNIVAL TO START WITH FIELD SPORTS AT PLAYGROUND

The returns from the efforts of the committee in charge of affairs at the Pythian carnival on the afternoon and evening of June 24 show facts that are staggering.

Visiting other lodges and inviting them to come brings unanimous assent and the possible crowd grows every day.

The program will keep away the blues and every visitor who comes will surely go away with a far better report of Tropico and Visor lodge than ever before. Ennui will be stricken from the boards.

Following is the program of sports to be held at the public playgrounds in the afternoon:

Base ball—Girls' team no boys' team.

Basket ball—Two Tropico teams.

Tennis and croquet matches.

Races—Bicycle, three times around track. Foot—boys under 12, 50 yds.

Boys under 16, 75 yds. Relay—Two teams, 4 men each.

Jumps—High, broad, hop-skip-jump.

The famous picture "Damon and Pythias" at Star theater. Drills by D. O. K. K. patrol of Los Angeles, Pythian Sisters, Uniform Rank, K. of P. and Elks' White Star patrol.

In the evening a cafeteria supper in K. P. hall.

The K. P. hall will also later in the evening be the scene of mystery when candidates will be initiated into the D. O. K. K.'s by the Los Angeles lodge. This work alone will bring hundreds of visitors. A band of 25 pieces will furnish music to the crowds who will dance upon San Fernando road, beautifully festooned with with flags and banners and brilliant lights, while tons of confetti will be used in friendly warfare. Concessions of every kind will greet the eye on every hand.

If you are looking for a big time come.

A Strange Conversion

By F. A. MITCHEL

A tramp called for food at a handsome country residence. The lady of the house was sitting on the veranda. She was a woman to interest herself in building up those who needed building up and ordered a maid to bring a substantial meal out on to the veranda and place it on a table. Then she invited the tramp to help himself. While he ate she questioned him as to the cause of his living a life of beggarly indolence. His replies were not very satisfactory and indicated that he followed the life of a tramp because he preferred it to work.

The lady, having fed him, gave him some money, and he departed. When her husband came home that evening she mentioned to him what she had done. He chided her for wasting her sympathy on one who was evidently undeserving, whereupon she declared that all persons were in a sense undeserving; that the mere fact of a person's being in bad condition, even though through his own fault, was a legitimate object for sympathy, and in any event it was an advantage to the giver to lend a helping hand.

A year passed. The tramp was passing over the same route as before and bethought himself of the aid and comfort he had derived at the place he was approaching. He was no more worthy of help than before, felt no gratitude; he only wished to get another meal and some more money. On reaching the house he saw evidences of a funeral taking place in it. The obsequies were for the lady who had befriended him, and since she had rendered herself much beloved on account of her charities a large number of poor people were in attendance.

The tramp joined those who were passing to have a last look at their benefactress. He noticed on the finger of the dead a diamond ring. He further noticed that when the lid of the coffin was put on the ring was not removed. When the funeral procession went to the cemetery he joined the throng and saw the body lowered into the grave. Then the mourners dispersed, and the tramp, after carefully noting the position of the lot, went away.

When night came he went to the house from which his benefactress had been carried, stole a spade and a shovel from among the garden tools and, going to the cemetery, began to remove the earth that had been thrown into the grave of his benefactress. Having uncovered the coffin, he took a screwdriver from his pocket and removed the lid. Taking the hand, he was surprised that there was in it a little warmth. The diamond ring was there, and he attempted to remove it. Failing to do so, he took out his knife to cut off the finger. Feeling something warm on his hand, he struck a match and saw that it was blood.

Leaping from the grave, he ran away as fast as his legs would carry him. Then he stopped and began to think. The most likely solution of what he had stumbled on was that it was one of those very rare cases of a trance having been mistaken for death. His benefactress was lying uncovered in a grave. What should he do? If he rescued her he would be obliged to confess that he had gone there to steal the ring on her finger.

There are natures so bereft of what is good that they can only be affected by some momentous event. The tramp was one of these. A sudden revulsion came over him. Returning to the grave, he found the body as he had left it. Removing it from its cold bed, he wrapped it in his coat and carried it to the nearest house and restoratives were applied.

For a long while the invalid hung between life and death. As soon as there was any hope for her recovery her husband was notified of what had occurred, but not till this was assured was the matter broken to any other member of the family. Then they knew of it by the lady being brought to her home.

As soon as the tramp had done all in his power to save his benefactress, from whose dead body he had intended to steal a jewel, taking advantage of the excitement attending the efforts to restore her, he disappeared. When the lady became convalescent she asked what had happened, but it was not thought advisable to tell her. Seeing that her finger had been badly cut, she inquired into the cause. A story was invented to satisfy her.

One thing puzzled her. Her husband, who had formerly been unsympathetic with her charitable work, which was not a part of organized aid to the poor, but, rather, spontaneous, had suddenly become an unreasoning giver.

The tramp again visited the house where he had received aid and comfort, but not as a tramp. The lady, as at the time of his first visit, was seated on the veranda when she saw a well dressed man coming up the walk. She did not recognize him till he made himself known and told her that it was through her he had become a changed man. But he exercised sufficient caution to discover that she did not know she had been in a grave, and he did not tell her. She asked him if there was anything she could do for him, and he replied that there was. He gave one-tenth of all he earned to criminals, and he thought that his gifts would have more effect if they passed through her hands. She accepted the trust. He made his first donation, and they were continued regularly during his life.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

CHEESE FANCIES.

CHEESE of different makes and flavors is usually considered an important part of the weekly food supply. Yet few realize how valuable it is in the domestic budget, for a good piece of fresh cheese may be offered as a substitute for meat. It is highly nutritive, and is also economical, since every scrap can be turned to account. Ends of cheese allowed to dry and then grated finely on a sharp grater may be sprinkled over dishes with advantage. Not only does this powdering increase the delicious tasty qualities, but it adds to the nourishing properties of many kinds of food.

Bread and Cheese Fritters.—Cut about four ounces of stale bread, free from crust, into dice, and put it in a basin; pour over about half a pint of hot milk and allow to soak for twenty minutes. Pour off some of the milk, add four ounces of grated cheese and stir in the yolks of two eggs. Put this into a stewpan with half an ounce of butter, season to taste with salt, pepper and grate of nutmeg and stir over the fire until the mixture is heated through. Let it cool a little, then add the white of one egg whisked to a stiff froth. Mix carefully and shape the mixture into even sized balls; dip them in beaten egg and cover with breadcrumbs; when set repeat the crumbing operation. Have ready some hot fat and fry the prepared balls to a golden color. Take up when done, drain them on paper or cloth, serve on a hot dish covered with a lace paper or folded napkin.

Cheese Custard.—Beat up three eggs and stir in an ounce of grated cheese, season with a pinch of cayenne and add half a gill of cream. Pour this into buttered soufflé cups and bake slowly. Send to table hot.

Cheese Condes.—Prepare a short crust paste with plenty of grated cheese mixed with the flour, etc., roll out and cut into round, oblong or square pieces. Place them on a greased baking tin. Bake them in a hot oven and let cool. Spread the top of each with a mixture composed of whipped cream, grated cheese and pepper. Decorate the top tastefully with this and serve.

Golden Buck.—Grate or chop finely six ounces of Cheddar cheese. Put into a saucepan about a quarter of a gill of water or cider, one-half ounce of butter; then add to the cheese a good pinch of salt, a dash of cayenne and half a teaspoonful of onion juice. Stir all with a wooden spoon over the fire until it becomes soft and creamy; then stir in one yolk of egg. Pour the mixture hot on two pieces of buttered toast placed on a hot dish and serve quickly.

Cheese and Egg Toast.—Pound the yolks of two hard boiled eggs with one ounce of butter; then add two ounces of grated Cheddar cheese. Season with salt and cayenne pepper to taste, also a little mustard if liked. Cut some buttered toast into rounds or squares, spread the mixture thickly on them, place them on a baking sheet and let them get hot and slightly brown in a quick oven. Take up and serve hot.

CIVILIZATION'S GREATEST TRAGEDY.

Extract from article by W. D. Lewis, president Texas Farmers' Union, opposing woman's suffrage:

"We are willing to join in every effort to elevate woman but will assist in none to drag her down. The descent of womanhood is the most awful tragedy in civilization. As she sinks she may, like the setting sun, tint the horizon with the rays of her departing glory. She may tenderly kiss the mountain tops of her achievement farewell; she may, like the sinking sun, allure the populace with her beauty as she disappears for the night but when she steps downward, the earth is as certain to tremble and plunge into darkness as death is to follow life."

It is an admitted economic fact that there can be no permanent prosperity without a permanent agriculture.

Agriculture is recognized as the greatest of all industries and a prosperous, progressive and enlightened agricultural population is the surest safeguard of civilization.
